MODEL UN

On Friday, April 7th, MTHS Model United Nations students Shrina Parikh, Daniel Hommer, and Ariana Yousafzai hosted its first annual Shark Tank Simulation. Five student pitches were presented in groups of 1-3 talented students to five business professionals in various areas from around New Jersey.

Kimvy Tran, MTHS sophomore, was the winner of the simulation with her custom-fit yoga mat called "Balance". The Sharks applauded Kimvy for her presentation skills, consumer consideration, and financial projections. Kimvy won 2 tickets to Propelify, an innovation festival where startups and entrepreneurs gather to discuss new ideas. The CEO of Propelify, Aaron Price, was also in attendance and made opening and closing remarks.

The evening culminated with a College Entrepreneurship Panel, comprised of students active in the Rutgers University Entrepreneurial Society. The students talked about their experiences with starting businesses as teenagers.

All proceeds from the event will benefit the YMCA Civic Engagement Scholarship Fund, which enables underprivileged students statewide to participate in YMCA Model United Nations.

FBLA

Congratulations to the following FBLA members who competed at Trading Day 2017 at Stevens Institute of Technology on Friday, April 28, 2017. From a selective pool of applicants, twenty-two high schools from New Jersey, New York and Connecticut competed in the real-time market competition in the high-tech Hanlon finance labs. The event, sponsored by TD Ameritrade, gave students 90 minutes to grow a virtual portfolio of $1 million, and also includes opportunities to network with students, faculty, alumni and industry professionals. The following are the students that participated:

Naveen Gedupoori

Ritik Patel

Akhilesh Reddy

Abhijeet Regatte
